The text at the bottom of this section is just hanging out on its own and is segregated with the color separation.

The layout on this is very clean and pretty, however let's do the background in the dark color originally selected for this section as Dr. Burns wanted more greys on his website and not all light colors:

Let’s try to copy how the section looks in the mockup, as we want THE DREAM SMILE to stand out more....here it doesn’t look like an obvious comparison. The Dream Smile Text in the comparison is very small and doesn’t stand out.

I'm not loving this font. It's a bit too ornate and has low legibility. We want it to be quick and effortless to read, especially if older people are visiting the site, let's stick to the original font they use on their website: Amiri.
